THE SNOW.

Who sings the snow?

The fair, the light, the sparkling snow
By gentle breezes or whirlwind driven,
Thou seek'st the churchyard world below,
And wend'st thy way from heaven—
O! thou mayst assume the purest heart,
For Purity itself thou art!

The virgin snow—the chaste, the free,
The myriad stranger, who scatters white!
Too innocent's love is wounded with thee,
As who is worth thy flight?
And garments of the purest bride
Are very darkness by thy side.

For thou dost sit on sculptured Earth
With majesty that rivals Death!
Thou seek'st the churchyard below,
And wend'st thy way from heaven—
O! thou mayst assume the purest heart,
For Purity itself thou art!

The virgin snow—the chaste, the free,
The myriad stranger, who scatters white!

one plate—from all around it come—from the north a cutting wind, from the south a sultry heat, from the east a cutting wind, from the west a sultry heat—and yet the plate remains perfectly fixed, and the mercury in the tube rises and falls, just as the temperature of the air increases or diminishes. Now, if the plate of glass were removed from the tube, the mercury would fall to the bottom of the cistern, and the tube would be left empty. The mercury remains suspended in the tube with increased brilliancy, and the tube is filled with the purest vacuum that human ingenuity can produce. Such is the vacuum formed between the plate of glass and the mercury in the tube, and the cause why the mercury remains suspended in the tube is, that the pressure of the air upon the plate of glass is counterbalanced by the pressure of the mercury in the tube, which is equal to the pressure of the air on a column of mercury of the same diameter as the tube, and of the height of the column above the level of the mercury in the cistern. The pressure of the air upon the plate of glass is equal to the weight of a column of mercury of the same diameter as the tube, and of the height of the column above the level of the mercury in the cistern. To the Editor of the Saturday Evening Post.

Your paper of the first inst. has an article from the Gazette of Charleston, stating arrears from Acre, to the 20th of January, and giving an account of the capture of the Sultan's fleet and arsenal. In the first I have no comment to offer upon the subject.

Acre, the ancient Ptolemais, and modern Saint Jean d'Acre, is a place of great commercial importance, as a port of entry, and as the key to the interior. In the hands of the Turks, it is of little or no value to the world at large, except as a place of refuge for ships in distress, and for the supply of provisions. In the hands of the Pasha of Egypt, it is a place of great importance, as a port of entry, and as the key to the interior. Cities and villages in the Custom of Basil have, with the exception of Schwartz Dorf, improved faster, and to a greater degree than any other in the Canton. The number of houses in the city of Basil, in the year 1800, was 1,200, and in the year 1830, 2,000. EPITOME OF THE TIMES.

The steward of Henry Brown, in St. Francisville, on the Ridge Road, was broken open on Sunday night, and robbed of about $1,000 in cash. A watch, named Wood, an old offender, was discovered the next day, in the act of offering some of the goods for sale, and escaped to the State of Kentucky.

The sale of the estate of the late Col. M'Intyr, of Columbia, S. C. took place on the 4th inst. and the sale of the negroes averaged upwards of $600 each. The number being 69, including old and young, sold for $41,391.

The Planet Jupiter.—Professor Airy, by a very ingenious process, has determined the mass of this planet by observations of the elongations of the fourth satellite, and he has proved that the value assigned by Laplace is not correct, and that the mass of Jupiter is more than 311 and less than 323 times that of the earth, making the probable part that of the sun's mass, valuable result in physical astronomy.—White's Ephemeris for 1832.

The Union men of South Carolina appear to have become converts to the doctrine of nullification, in the event that they threaten to nullify the late law, requiring every public officer to take an oath of allegiance. That was a singular resolution in a union man.

FOREIGN NEWS.

LATEST FROM EUROPE.

By our New York correspondence of last evening, we are informed of the arrival at that port from Havre, of the packet ship Richard, Capt. Holdrege, with Paris papers of the 23d December, and Havre of the 25th. The interesting extracts are furnished in the Commercial Advertiser, from which we glean the following items of news:

From the 13th to the 23d of December, inclusive, the sales of Cottons at Havre, reached 5319 bales, of which 3073 were American.

The French papers say that the inconvenience felt in the United States from the want of specie, is similar to the scarcity or the currency in the United States. So much for the accuracy of foreign journals.

The Royal Chamber of Deputies was opened on the 23d December. The doors were opened at ten o'clock, and the spectators arrived but slowly. At noon the hour appointed for the shutting of the doors many hundred seats yet vacant. The King was in large majority in the public and private tribunes.

The Duke of Orleans, about three hundred Deputies, and many Peers arrived. Imperial Papers were not present. At ten minutes past noon, the sessions of the 23d were declared closed the deputies of the Right from the Thuileries. The members of the Diplomatic body in the Royal Tribune. All eyes were fixed on M. Pasquier, who, this year, did not wear the Marshal's baton.

The Royal family took their place near the diplomatic Tribune. The Queen and the Princesses were accompanied with great attention. At half-past one, the King was announced. His Majesty was accompanied by the Dukes of Nemours and Montpensier, and the Prince de Joinville. Cries of "Vive le roi" burst from the Left and the Duchess of the Right Centre.

His Majesty addressed the Peers and Deputies, as follows:—

The repose of France has not been disturbed since your last session. It is in possession of the blessings of peace, and of the liberty which is the result of ardent love for that blessing. The Duke de Bourbon says that Don Miguel was wounded in fighting against the troops of his brother, which Don Pedro commands. The Duke de Bourbon says that the two brothers actually fought hand to hand, and that Don Miguel had a sufficiently dangerous wound.

The Queen, wishing to hunt in the forest of Compiegne, was obliged to provide herself with troops in order to secure her personal safety. She has therefore a band of 300 men are passing about the country. Accounts from Madrid, to the 15th December, state that the Queen Regent had been married by proxy to Don Miguel, and that the ceremony had been performed with energy and patience in the same system. An assiduous vigilance is still necessary; inactive intrigue and culpable negligence would be the ruin of social order.

We will oppose to them your legal concurrence, the firmness of the magistracy, the activity of the administration, the courage and devotion of the National Guard, the wisdom of the nation,—enlightened to the danger of the illusions which they would palm, and who attack. Liberty! Liberty! Liberty! Liberty! and we will assure the triumph of the constitutional order, and our progress in civilization.

It is due, gentlemen, that we will finally place a limit to the expenses of the Civil List, established at the term of France. I thank her for the support she has lent to me. I thank her for the testimonies of confidence and affection with which she has surrounded me. I have received them with emotion in those Departments which I have visited, and on my way, and I return thanks to Providence for the blessings which our country already enjoys, and for those which the future promises.

You will second me also, gentlemen, in my efforts to protect the interests of the Monarchy, by the improvement, if it be possible, of the laws of recruitment, of the organization of the National Guard, and the number of the troops. The ordinary budget will amount of the present year to the 18,000 infantry and 2,000 cavalry. The army on the peace establishment of 1832, which will be 240,000 and the other at Bayonne, and a junction to be effected by a large force from the Pyrenees.

From Jamaica.—We have received a file of the Royal Gazette to the 16th ult., and after a careful examination do not find any thing of importance.—Sheriff Sales are numerous, and the crops are coming in freely, but the Port Royal Mountains, but no damage, of consequence, is reported. The Royal Gazette has resigned his command of the forces of the island, and Sir Lionel Smith, Governor Norcott. The latter was daily expected at Kingston.

Proclamation Jan. 4.—We have this day to announce that his Excellency the Governor has, in pursuance of one of the provisions of the Abolition Act, and in addition to the two official communications there specified, appointed the following gentlemen Assistant Commissioners for the distribution of the Compensation Fund in the Island of Jamaica:—the Hon. Wm. Miller, the Hon. J. Mair, the Hon. Hector Mitchell, the Hon. Benj. Hall, the Hon. Wm. Burge, the Hon. Wm. Esq.

From Havre.—We have received a file of the Havre Journal to the 25th inst., from which we extract the following:

The French are about to make important preparations for extending their dominions in Africa. Advices from Algiers state that the Duke de Rovigo has arrived at Bona, in the province of Constantine, and intended passing through Tunis, and Tripoli, to Egypt, on a visit to the Pasha of Egypt. It is supposed that, on coming to Bona, he will proceed to Bougia, and a junction to be effected with the troops from Algiers.

FROM THE KENTUCKY REPORTER.

Such the tragedies, has been showing off some of our methodical tradesmen at Louisville of late. It was but a few days since, that a merchant of that city failed for $100,000, or thereabouts, and left for the East, to settle at the Louisville Banker, but when the expectant arrived at Philadelphia, he found himself minus $20,000 in cash he found. This aberration created no little excitement among the merchants and business men of Louisville, and the manager was forced to make sundry verbal and written apologies, and to assure the sufferers that the deficiency would be made up. The following is the copy.

CARD.—Whereas, I put an advertisement in the paper called the Focus edited by my brother, M. Thatcher, that I had left the city of Louisville, and in fact I had not left, but was in the room of my brother, to gain popularity, &c. and thereby injuring the reputation of a gentleman who saved my life, I hereby make the above known to the public, and ask their forgiveness.

Yours, &c. JAMES THATCHER.

Monument Tragedy.—A short time back, a man named Joseph John Hourigan, confined in the penitentiary, died in consequence of the bursting of an aneurism, or ossification of the heart. He had been gradually increasing for six years and eight months, and when, a few months before his death, was suspected of having the disease. On the 15th of January, he was observed to exhibit an appearance of inflammation, and was immediately bled, and died in a few minutes, and a discharge of no less than forty ounces of matter from the heart, which had formed a bag or sac, and ulcerated, subsequently he lost all desire of food, and wasted away till death terminated his sufferings. A post mortem examination was made, and the above facts were communicated, in which he set, with a variety of the remarkable cases of the kind, and the above circumstances. His medical attendants would have been gratified to witness the interment, but the fear of the keepers the operation would occasion mortal death.

MURDER.

From the Wilmington Gazette we learn that on Sunday last, the body of a man was found in the bed of Hannah Callahan, who was found dead in her bed, supposed to have been murdered by her husband, Patrick Callahan.

The Philadelphia Journal says, that it will be found to be in a dreadful condition; her head was much bruised, and her face was also much bruised, and the cruel villain had made his escape. The Journal also says that the murder was discovered by the drunkenness of the husband, who was found in the house, and was arrested by the police.

SPAIN.

The Memorial Bordelais, of the 16th Dec., has a letter, of the 7th, from Madrid, which, after announcing the flight of Don Carlos into Portugal, and the arrival of Gen. Rodil, as has been already stated, adds:—"The flight of Don Carlos has not, as was feared, thrilled some of their heroes in the hands of Rodil. On the arrival of the latter in the capital, on the morning, Miranda was surrounded, and, at break of day, he appeared at the head of Rodil was announced. The guns were opened, and the troops were drawn up in order of battle. Rodil, in order to whatever conditions he might decree. Don Carlos and his followers, on the contrary, expected the Queen in person. Miranda has made his journey to Portugal, in consequence of a report that Don Carlos had taken a direction with his troops to Badajoz. Rodil was making on a large scale at Toledo for the purpose of the Queen, in the interior portion of the country, at six stage of the line, an brigade, five squadrons, 12 pieces, and a number of transports. The whole, at present, will amount to 18,000 infantry and 2,000 cavalry. The army on the peace establishment of 1832, which will be 240,000 Bona and the other at Bugia, and a junction to be effected by a large force from the Pyrenees.

From Jamaica.—We have received a file of the Royal Gazette to the 16th ult., and after a careful examination do not find any thing of importance.—Sheriff Sales are numerous, and the crops are coming in freely, but the Port Royal Mountains, but no damage, of consequence, is reported. The Royal Gazette has resigned his command of the forces of the island, and Sir Lionel Smith, Governor Norcott. The latter was daily expected at Kingston.

Proclamation Jan. 4.—We have this day to announce that his Excellency the Governor has, in pursuance of one of the provisions of the Abolition Act, and in addition to the two official communications there specified, appointed the following gentlemen Assistant Commissioners for the distribution of the Compensation Fund in the Island of Jamaica:—the Hon. Wm. Miller, the Hon. J. Mair, the Hon. Hector Mitchell, the Hon. Benj. Hall, the Hon. Wm. Burge, the Hon. Wm. Esq.

From Havre.—We have received a file of the Havre Journal to the 25th inst., from which we extract the following:

The French are about to make important preparations for extending their dominions in Africa. Advices from Algiers state that the Duke de Rovigo has arrived at Bona, in the province of Constantine, and intended passing through Tunis, and Tripoli, to Egypt, on a visit to the Pasha of Egypt. It is supposed that, on coming to Bona, he will proceed to Bougia, and a junction to be effected with the troops from Algiers.

MARCH OF REFINEMENT.

Verses for the year 1793.

Tell John to set the horses,
That coach is quite a dirty;
I only want to go to Boston,
And back again by five.

Tell cook to draw those hamming birds
Before to-morrow;
They'll be quite high at least two days,
And Tom, who yes the gold-leaf wings,
And mind he fixes it direct
I want none fluttle wingses.

Tell Peter dinner time and one.

Fly round by France, and bring a new
Perpetual motion gun,
Two pocket-handkerchief handels, I go
A hunting in the sun.

The trip I took the other day,
Was pleasant in the Strand,
Thanks to that awkward Lord Bellaire,
Who spoiled my new fashion!

I'm getting through the mille way,
He ran against I rear;
And terrified my leader so much,
I was just spasmed my ear.

But, Tom, get you the car repaired,
And then let Dick and I,
Inform you the square rules of gar—
I mean to travel quick.

My groom is ready up by now,
And waiting for the word;
Give me the bridle-bag for the way!
All right—but where's the sword?

London Times.

Original Anecdotes.—Several years since, a celebrated Methodist preacher was on a visit to Dublin, and opened in this village; and among others put a watch into a bag, "wanting it all to pieces," and by saying nothing about it, expected to see it return whole. The bag passed, it was sent present, thinking it a very pretty, he would let it go. The next week, took advantage of Bill's absence the next day, opened the gold repeater and found it completely new and polished. To his astonishment, in spite of presents, it "stood dismissed."

A Sharp's Distortions or Hunting.—Going to see my father the other day, he told me to take a very fine horse of his, and ride to the hounds. I accordingly did so, and when they brought me one as more spirited than the former, they brought me one as more spirited than the former, they brought me one as more spirited than the former,
